Virtual Training Code of Conduct

Being Professionally Present

Be Prepared

- You will need a reliable internet connection.
- You will need a computer, tablet or phone with both video and audio capabilities.
 - One person per device is advised. Please contact the training facilitator prior to registering if you need to share devices.
- Check your email for instructions and a password protected link for the training.
- Read your pre-training email carefully to complete any pre-class work and prepare or print any needed in-class materials.
- Have all required materials prepared and ready to go at the start of the training.
- Please log on 5-10 minutes early to test out your audio/video and to ensure class can start on time.
- Select a dedicated, quiet, indoor space to attend the training with limited disruptions.

During the Training

- Mute your microphone unless you are speaking. Disruptive background activity or noise may result in the presenter muting your or asking you to leave the training
- Avoid sitting with the window or bright lights behind you.
- Avoid multi-tasking and focus on the content that is being presented. Virtual trainings are to be attended just as in person trainings would be. You may be removed from the training if these types of distractions occur.
 - If you need to quickly step away from the screen for any reason, notify the facilitator through the chat option.
- Participation throughout the session is required for attendance. Be sure to make yourself present visually and orally throughout the training. Contact the facilitator prior to the course with any concerns.
- If you are having trouble hearing or seeing the presenter or cannot see their shared screen, please send a chat message and let the facilitator know.

Quick Tips

- Make sure the name displayed is your First and Last name. It will be used for attendance purposes.
- The chat feature can be used to send messages to individuals as well as the whole group.
- Check out what will be in the cameras view. Make sure your background is rated "G" and does not have any personally identifiable information.
- If using virtual backgrounds, keep them neutral and non-distracting.
- Being at home can make us feel a bit more comfortable than we would in person, be sure to present yourself professionally.

We reserve the right to withhold credit or remove participants from a training if there is any reason to believe they are being distracted or unable to fully participate.
